

Inquirers

We're naturally curious and becoming ever more so. We ask the right questions, do our own research and trust ourselves to learn independently. We're proud to be developing a lifelong love of learning.

Knowledgeable

It's our world and we're fascinated by it. We explore its ideas and issues from the school gates to the farthest ends of the earth, and the knowledge we gather is deep, well balanced and all encompassing.

Thinkers

We think on our feet, critically, creatively and analytically. We enjoy the challenges of dealing with complex mathematical or analytical problems and the decisions we make are reasoned, ethical and well considered.

communicators

We love to communicate. Confident, creative and fluent at expressing ideas in different ways, languages and technologies, we know that working together locally, nationally or globally makes us stronger.

Principled

We're people who value integrity, honesty and fairness. We take responsibility for our actions and we're always respectful of the dignity of others, whether individuals, groups or communities.

OPEN-MINDED

We treasure our own cultures, values and personal histories, yet we're fascinated by those of other people and communities. We seek out a range of perspectives to help us define ourselves and grow as individuals.

caring

We care deeply about others, showing empathy, compassion and respect for their needs and feelings. We're dedicated to making a positive difference to their lives, as well as to wider society and the environment.

RISK-TAKERS

We have the courage to face unfamiliar situations with confidence and the good sense to be financially responsible. Spirited, independent and enterprising, we embrace new roles, ideas, technologies and strategies.

balanced

We're in control of our lives and we know that true wellbeing comes from balancing our intellectual, physical, economic and emotional aspects. We act independently but always rise to our responsibilities as citizens.

Reflective

We cherish our inner life and we nurture our souls. In ways that can be profoundly spiritual and emotional, we take the time to reflect deeply on ourselves, our experiences and the wider world.

SELF-MANAGERS

We understand that we're a work in progress. We're realistic about our strengths, honest about the places where we can improve and we take responsibility for our own personal development.

LEADERS

We have vision and we can inspire and motivate others. Leading by example, we defend our beliefs, show others the way and will readily take them under our wing if we need to.

adaptable

We welcome change with open arms. Our attitudes and skills put us in amongst the pioneers, right at the forefront of progress, understanding new technology and embracing the world that it's creating.

GLOBAL MINDDED

We are citizens of the world. We understand global interdependence, appreciate diversity and we have the confidence and skills to relish the challenges of our future in a global society and workplace.